

Journee Blake hates everything. She can't stand the way she looks. She despises her brother. And she's so tired of constantly having to move because her father can't keep a job.

With no friends, no allies at home, and no hope of things getting better soon, the last thing she needs is one more problem. Unfortunately, a much bigger problem is right under her nose.

She's convinced strange beings live under her house.

Between struggling to fit in at school, a father who blames her for mysterious messes in the house, and all the other things wrong in her life, she now has to figure out how a house she knows she cleaned ends up in such disarray.

A brief investigation proves her hunch is right.

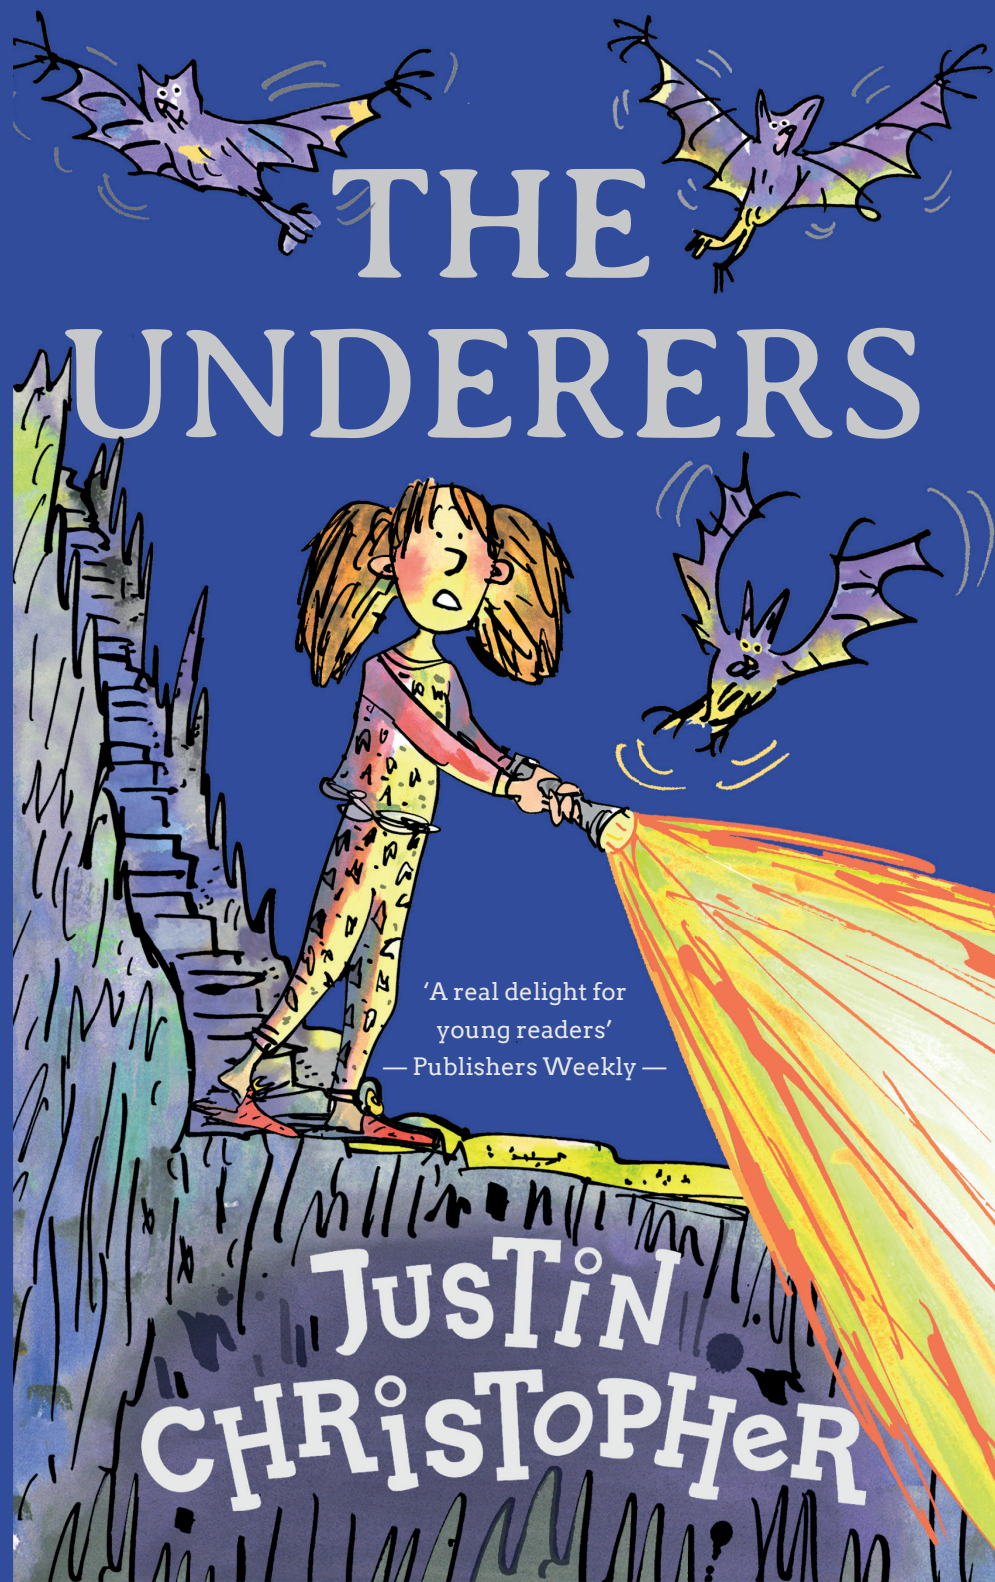

Strange, white glowing beings known as the Underers are to blame. When she discovers their magical world 101 steps beneath her bed, she's elated at the prospect of having the perfect secret family... until they make an unreasonable request.

Now she must choose between meeting their demands or losing them forever.
